Few people seem disposed to purchase railroad securities, and the market is glutted with the present supply. As railroads cannot sell bonds, they are compelled to borrow money on short time notes at a high rate of interest, and some of them find it difficult a consequence, the railroads have disader act of continued, as far as possible, all extenfor supplies. The Times-Dispatch is no pessimist and no alarmist, but when the railroads, which employ large numbers of men on their own account, and which are the largest purchasers of steel, iron and various other commodities, lay off their men and reduce their orders for supplies to the minimum, all the branches of trade and industry are compelled to feel it more or less, and there will of necessity follow curtailment in other directions. I'll Never Love Thee More

By MARQUIS OF MONTROSE.

My dear and only love, I pray
That little world of thee
Be govern'd by no other sway
But purest monarchy:
For if confusion have a part,
Which virtuous souls abhor,
I'll call a synod in my heart,
And never love thee more.

As Alexander I will reign,
And I will reign alone;
My thoughts did evermore disdain
A rival on my throne,
He either fears his fate too much,
Or his deserts are small,
Who dares not put it to the touch,
To gain or lose it all.

But I will reign and govern still,

And always give the law,
And have each subject Lt my will,
And all to stand in awe:
But 'gainst my batteries if I find
Thou storm or vex me sore,
As if thou set me as a blind,
I'll never love thee more,

And in the empire of thy heart, And in the empire of thy heart,
Where I should solely be,
If others do pretend a part,
Or dare to share, with me.
Or committees if thou erect,
Or go on such a score,
I'll smiling mock at thy neglect,
And never leve thee more.

But if no faithless action stain
Thy love and constant word,
I'll make thee famous by my pen,
And glorious by my sword.
I'll serve thee in such noble ways
As ne'er was known before;
I'll deck and crown thy head with bays,
And love thee more and more.

Virginia and the Railroads.

The Railroads' Mistake.

We doubt if it would have been wise to amend the Constitution simply to evade Judge Pritchard's injunction; but the fact remains that the process of amendment could have been completed with extraordinary facility at this time, and the railroads evidently did not care to face any more of the music. What a pity they did not at first content themselves with the regular course of appeal to the highest court of the State, to which the Constitution allows them to go directly! They will know hetter next time, we hope—Norfolk Landmark. The Governor's Hand,

Nowadays statesmen climb on step-ping-stores of trusts-which-they have-biffed to better things.

Stock market prices are not so low. What the State Wants.

What the State Wants.

The railroads want to abide by the laws of Virginia, and show good sense by taking the stand that they have. It is doubtful if they would have agreed on the program that is to follow had it not been for the firm stand taken by the officials of the State, but they, however, have agreed to make a test case of it, and that is fust what the State wants.—Newport News Press,

"After a glimpse of the fine tobacco crops in Virginia and North Carolina, it is indeed comforting to know that the early plants hereabout are not destroyed by night-riders, such as they have in some parts of Kentucky, said a visitor from that State at the Richmond last night. "You know it takes fifteen months to develop one crop of tobacco. Early in the season beds are prepared and thoroughly burned, the heat going far into the soil and kill-leat going far into the soil and kill-lea fifteen months to develop one tobacco. Early in the season beds are tobacco. Early in the season beds are prepared and thoroughly burned, the heat going far into the soil and killing all foreign vegetation. The tender plants, called seedlings, are carefully Bristol. Being one bed for an acre or more, and there wedding will be celebrated August 21st, at 6 o'clock, in the First Baptist Church worms, and there may be enough in one bed for an acre or more. Being familiar with conditions, the night-riders simply destroy the entire seed-ling bed, which means so much time and trouble wasted, that the farmer cannot plant again. It means a serious loss of course. These night-riders are enemies of the trust, and they think the proper punishment for those identified with it by selling the product to trust warehouses is to fix it so that nothing will be left to sell. This will element does not find much favor in Kentucky, and tobacco growers as a rule make every effort to discourage it, but now and then the crop vandais appear and cause much destruction by a system of agricultural lynch law."

Hon, D. L. D. Granger, of Providence, congressman from the First Rhode Island District, spent yesterday in Richmond, and was registered at the Lexington. Representative Granger, who is entering upon his third term in the House, served long with Governor Swanson, and he called at the Executive Department yesterday to renew old acquaintances, but His Excellency was at the exposition, and he, therefore, did not see him.

Mr. Granger is one of the few Democrats in Congress from the New England section, and he seems invincible among his people. He defeated Congressman Mellville Bull, who had been a leader on the Republican side for many years, and since that time the dominant party has been unable to reclaim the district from the Democrats.

Mr. Granger is a little past the midrectain the district from the Demo-rats.

Mr. Granger is a little past the mid-dle age of life, is an able lawyer, and has served two terms as Mayor of the city of Providence.

He was passing through on his way to the Jamestown Exposition, and stopped over here for a time in order to see something of Richmond. He ex-pressed himself as highly pleased with what he has observed during his trip through Virginia. Mesers. C. W. Heater, Thos. J. Arvin.

Mesers C. W. Heater, Thos. J. Arvin, W. H. Eggborn, J. H. C. Beverley and J. M. Barker, members of the State Board of Agriculture, are in the city to attend a mesting of the board at the Capital to-day, They are registered at the Richmond. The other five members or at least enough to make up a quorum, are expected in time for the meeting. The object of the session is to strange for a series of farmers institutes to be held in various sections of the State, and, it is understood, that it has no reference to the recent disturbance in the Department, which, it is said, is all settled now. The time for the holding of the institutes is drawing near, and the board desires to arrange a schedule which will reach every agricultural section of the State, if it is possible to do so. It is probable that the board will complete its work and adjourn after one session.
